→ Designed for foreign investors and lawyers, with comparisons to Western legal concepts and multilingual terminology

This book examines the recent and major developments of Chinese business law, in particular for foreign investors. It clarifies legal concepts specific to Chinese law whose principles are often overlooked or misunderstood, rarely discussed in English, or rendered outdated by continuous and far-reaching reforms and, where appropriate, compares them with similar notions in Western legal systems, mainly of civil law. It focuses on the 2019 Foreign Investment Law, the 2020 Civil Code, and the 2023 Revision of the Company Law, as well as on the related secondary legislation and international law issues. A selected terminology in Chinese, Pinyin, English, French, German, and Latin complements it.
